“ We loved visiting with Mrs. Carter when we were at the Byrd House. She was always looking out for our house and alerted us when there were issues. Four generations of our families have shared times together there. Daddy would go fishing and then to see Mr. Carter, Mr. Carter and my mother passed away the same week, so Mrs. Carter and I grieved together and had fun remembering the early times at the Byrd House. We talked plants together and grandchildren and she was always smiling and laughing during our times together. Our grandchildren enjoyed going to see her whenever they came, and they particularly enjoyed her candy dish she always had available. She was a wise and caring woman who touched our lives with her spunk and kindness. The Kempers and Youmans will miss our lake house friend.
