“Everybody should have a Carol in their lives. She was a counselor, an advisor, a friend, a magic eight ball, a calming voice, a ride or die, or just an ear to bend. She was many things to many people. Carol was also a very trustworthy person; you could trust that she would honor her commitments and promises. If you knew her at all, you know that she was a woman of her word. If she said something, she meant it. Among other things, Carol was giving. She'd give you the shirt off her back if you needed it. Additionally, if you needed an opinion, she would be happy to give that to you as well. Carol had a wicked sense of humor on top of everything else. She was quick witted and could crack a joke about anything. She had a wonderful laugh, hearty and full of happiness. She loved to tease the people she cared about and could take it as well as she gave it. Carol was an amazing, beautiful, independent, energetic, creative, authentic, generous, loyal soul. I will celebrate the memories made and keep the words she shared close to me.

“Such an amazing, many years of a working relationship that became friendship along the way! I met Carol through my online shop on Ruby Lane. We never met in person, but she was a joy to work with, especially when a program was complicated, helping me master it and always providing creative ideas in the warmest way. My sincere condolences to her family, may your memories help carry you through this terrible time. Jane Silvernail
