“ When Anthony became a part of our granddaughter Sadie's life he became our much loved grandson. Our daughter Amy and I visited them when they were still living in Georgia and we were fortunate to meet Steven while we were there. Such a warm, friendly man. We know how much joy the birth of Anthony's son, Mason, brought to him and it was truly a blessing he spent time with them this February here in Wisconsin. While it is so sad to know that Mason will not grow up knowing his Grandpa Steve, his memory will be kept alive through pictures and stories. Our most sincere sympathy to Steven's family and friends. May he be at peace in his Heavenly Home. We know how much he will be missed.

“ Steven helped me work with a wild horse. Steven had a steady soul and the horse trusted him. I remember always freaking out about his snakes in the house. His pets long ago. He was always upbeat and a hard worker. God gave you wings too early.

“ You know I knew you were a little crazy and definitely going to drive my aunt Heather insane when hurricane Michael hit and you were outside on the back porch at my granny smoking a cigarette like it was just barely raining even though the wind was breaking trees in the background and her being inside scared to death because of it. I knew you before hand but nothing like getting to know a person in the middle of a huge storm, with no lights and nothing to do but talk about whatever was on our minds at the moment. We will all miss you so very much. You were definitely a force to be reckoned with! Just keep loving your great nieces because they will miss you the most! I love you!!!

“ I'll never forget our first conversations of you being a single dad, wanting to stay single and all of the things you had hoped to achieve that year. How you always stayed up late playing Minecraft and never getting to bed before work. Your infectious smile and laugh. All of our fun outings together. My first time riding a motorcycle was with you. But most importantly there is two memories I'll never forget. The safety I felt as soon as I pulled into your driveway. Honestly Diddy your home saved my life. And your most recent visit when your grandson truly fell in love with you too. We will love you always.
